@PBCOHE
Greetings,

Welcome to the 46th Annual Pennsylvania Black Conference on Higher Education. The 2016 Annual Conference: “Examining Institutional Barriers Towards Inclusion and Success in Higher Education: Where Are We Now & Where Are We Going?” will be held from Thursday, March 3 through Saturday, March 5 at the Embassy Suites Philadelphia Airport.

Forty-five years ago, K. Leroy Irvis founded the Pennsylvania Black Conference on Higher Education to examine the impact of state and federal educational policies on persons of color in Pennsylvania and advocate for greater access for minority students, faculty and staff. This year's theme, “Innovations in Higher Education: The way forward for a diverse student population”, explores new initiatives and strategies that have been implemented in recent years within our nation’s colleges and universities, as well as innovations on the horizon, and how such innovations will impact minority students. PBCOHE is seeking to learn from faculty, staff and graduate students whose work examines what forces currently shape the landscape within higher education. These may include changes we anticipate to these forces in the coming years, and how minority students might benefit from or be hampered by recent and anticipated changes and innovations involving recruitment and retention efforts, advancements in technology and online learning, and national or local educational policies among other areas.

Since 1970, PBCOHE has given thousands of dollars in financial support to worthy students through its scholarship program. Moreover, PBCOHE provides ongoing opportunities for minorities in higher education to pursue their professional, social, and personal development. We are a not-for-profit, (501)(c)(3) organization and a Pennsylvania professional association whose purpose is to ensure that African Americans and other underrepresented groups have access to higher education in the Commonwealth.

The PBCOHE 46th Annual Conference will be hosted in Philadelphia, Pennsylvania. As the home of the Liberty Bell and Independence Hall, Philadelphia serves as the ideal setting for examining how student progress is enhanced or inhibited by educational policies and practices. This conference will provide attendees with a rich opportunity to explore the myriad of issues related to ensuring student success. Please join us as we celebrate forty-six years of service and scholarship.

Sincerely,

The 2016 Annual Conference Planning Committee

Lawrence A. Dowdy and Cherylyn Rush, Co-Chairs

“Examining Institutional Barriers Towards Inclusion and Success in Higher Education: WHERE ARE WE NOW & WHERE ARE WE GOING?”

Call for Proposals

Forty-five years ago, K. Leroy Irvis, the first African American Speaker of the Pennsylvania State House of Representatives, founded the Pennsylvania Black Conference on Higher Education (PBCOHE). The purpose of PBCOHE is to examine the impact of state and federal educational policies on persons of color in Pennsylvania and to advocate for the postsecondary access and success for minority students, faculty and staff. This year's theme, “Examining Institutional Barriers Towards Inclusion and Success in Higher Education: Where Are We Now and Where Are We Going?”, explores new initiatives and strategies that have been implemented in recent years within our nation’s colleges and universities, as well as innovations on the horizon, and how such innovations will impact minority students. PBCOHE is seeking to learn from faculty, staff and graduate students whose work examines what forces currently shape the landscape within higher education. These may include changes we anticipate to these forces in the coming years, and how minority students might benefit from or be hampered by recent and anticipated changes and innovations involving recruitment and retention efforts, advancements in technology and online learning, and national or local educational policies among other areas.

In line with the Pennsylvania Black Conference on Higher Education mission and the desire of K. Leroy Irvis to ensure that minorities have access to quality education, we invite scholars, educators, and policy makers to submit papers that examine these issues within the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania and throughout the nation at large.

We invite you to submit your ideas, inspiration and innovative presentations that reflect the essence of this year’s conference theme. Please submit your proposal on one of the following (or other related) topics:

- Diversity in Higher Education
- Black and Brown Males in Higher Education
- Student Retention and Achievement

- Urban Education and Achievement
- English Language Learners in Higher Education
